Good afternoon!

Even the toughest of officers get teary eyed as they watch a Special Olympics athlete carry a torch to light the cauldron as the official start of the Kentucky Summer Games. Even better, if you happen to be one of those officers escorting this athlete into the opening ceremony, seeing the athlete's faces light up and hearing their everlasting cheers, the true meaning will begin to sink in.

On the first weekend of June each year, over 1,200 athletes with intellectual disabilities from all across the state travel to Eastern Kentucky University for Special Olympics Kentucky's annual Summer Games. If your office or department has been participating, we thank you!

Each year, on the Friday before the Games, military and law enforcement officers, better known as the Law Enforcement Torch Run (LETR), meet in Richmond and travel from various counties to run the "Final Leg" and carry the "Flame of Hope" as "Guardians of the Flame" to commemorate the start of the Games. This year's Final Leg will be on Friday, May 31.

While this run only lasts for one day, the fundraising and public relations never ends. The more officers involved, the more awareness it brings to the community and, especially, to OUR athletes. Whether you want to escort the Special Olympics Torch, the Flame of Hope, or simply want to raise funds, EVERYONE is invited to participate.

We, as law enforcement officers, have sworn to serve our community. The Summer Games is an event that not only provides us this opportunity but is also an event that creates priceless changes in the lives of intellectually disabled athletes across the state.

This year, the Kentucky Law Enforcement Torch Run Council is asking each law enforcement department and office to "commit" to sending at least one officer to spend the entire day (Friday, May 31) with us to mark the beginning of the Summer Games. Each of these officers may also choose to stay the night and assist in handing out medals during Saturday's competitions.

Please make this commitment by completing the attached form and returning it to Jayna Oakley, Torch Run Liaison by May 3! Special Olympics Kentucky changes lives. Join our LETR campaign today!

Sincerely,

State Director
Kentucky LETR Executive Council
