

International Association of Women Police Conference
Lexington August 21-25, 2011

The Kentucky Women Law Enforcement Network and the Lexington Division of Police are hosting the annual IAWP conference this summer in Lexington. The conference draws over 600 delegates from around the world. The training schedule has tracts that cover law enforcement, corrections and international policing issues and are of interest to any person related to the law enforcement field. Information about the conference can be found at www.iawp2011.org. We are looking for volunteers to work during the conference too. You may contact event coordinators through the website listed.